Description:

Long-stemmed pipe with long bowl leaning back at 45°. It has a small cylindrical projection at the base of the bowl and the bit flares slightly. The bowl tapers towards its base and then extends into a spherical shape into which stem and bowl join. The stem is covered in coils of copper wire and the top of the bowl is sheathed with a band of copper. There is a stopper in the top of the bowl and a string attaches it to the stem.
