Paternoster 2013:

This is a well-preserved adult male skeleton, excavated and bagged by J.C.Sealy in July, 2013. Age is middle adult, perhaps in his 40s. The context, the condition of the bones and teeth, and the behavioral indicators on the skeleton all suggest Later Stone Age provenience. See Sealy's report on HWC permit case no 130712TS23.

The sample is the anterior portion of the right 6th rib, missing its sternal end at time of discovery.
